GOVERNOR CALLS LEGISLATURE FOR SPECIAL SESSION MONDAY

Governor Merriam this week issued a call to the Legislature to convene in extra session, beginning next Monday, May 29.

The governor stated the call was made necessary by the acute relief situation in which the state finds itself. He outlined the program for the special session as follows:

Relief appropriation of $2,500,000 to supply funds necessary until June 30 next when the 1936-37 State relief appropriation of $24,000,000 becomes available.

Broadening of the base for sale of State warrants so that insurance companies and trust agencies may legally purchase the warrants.

Amendment to existing Unemployment Reserve Commission legislation to permit refund of taxes paid by employers and employes if State act or that section of Federal social securities act relating to unemployment insurance is declared unconstitutional.

Necessary legislation to make Federal child welfare funds available to California.

General law validating all school bonds so that districts that have voted bonds may avail themselves of WPA funds.

The executive will request that no controversial bills be considered and will ask that any matters tending to provoke controversy be put over until the next regular session early next year.

NEW PRESIDENT ASKS INCREASE IN MEMBERSHIP

Patriotic Californians Invited To Join Native Sons Of Golden West

An invitation to all native born Californians to become members of the Native Sons of the Golden West and help them perpetuate the romance of early California and keep the State in its present position as the leading commonwealth in America was extended by Hartley Russell, newly elected Grand President of the order, when he spoke yesterday afternoon to a large gathering of Native Sons and friends who attended the impressive installation ceremony that marked the close of the fifty-ninth annual Grand Parlor meeting held in Santa Cruz for the past four days.

The new Grand President in pointing out the innumerable interest which exist for every true Californian in the activities of the Native Sons of the Golden West, said:

"Although our Order is essentially a fraternal body with close to 20,000 patriotic members, it is much more than that. Few people really appreciate the broad scope of its beneficial service to the state of California, and still fewer yet know the joys and satisfactions derived by the men who take an active part in the order's program of service.

GILROY ROUNDUP AND GYMKHANA TO BE GREATEST YET

Expect Affair To Be Best Attended And Most Colorful

One of the greatest aggregation of Western riders ever to appear at a rodeo is expected to open Gilroy's Roundup and Gymkhana on May 30 and 31. The committee in charge has personally invited more than 1000 horsemen to participate in the parade. These, with the several bands and drum corps, will comprise a large and colorful parade contingent, which will march to the grounds on both days to open the seventh annual show.

To accommodate this great number of horses, the Gilroy Gymkhana Association has built, this year, 1200 running feet of stables, modern in every detail, with saddle rooms attached. It is felt that the Gymkhana Association has ample stable room for all animals brought to the show.

According to information received regarding the advanced ticket sale for this year's Roundup, there will undoubtedly be the best attended as well as the greatest spectacle ever put on in Gilroy.

SUPERINTENDENT OF COUNTY HAS NO DISCRETION

School Code Specifies Manner In Which Candidates Are Selected

From the office of the county superintendent of schools comes the information that the School Code of California makes it mandatory for the county superintendent of schools to print the name of any candidate for school trustee on the ballots for the June 5 election, provided such a candidate has filed officially on or before May 21.

In order to file, one must be a citizen of the United States, twenty-one years of age, and a resident of the school district which he seeks to serve.

The reason for making this information public is that certain persons believe that discretionary power is vested in that office as to the selection of desirable candidates. There being none, it is deemed advisable to inform the public as to the code provisions.

FANS FURNISH REAL SUPPORT FOR RACING

By J. W. MARCHBANK

Heywood Broun tells in his interesting column in a string of papers how racing rteurned to New York after it had been sidetracked for a few years by Charles E. Hughes, then governor of the state. Hughes had some notions that could hardly be termed modern. Broun says:

"Racing returned because people wanted it. No complete enabling legislation was provided. What the people wanted they got without much help from courts or constitutions or lawmakers."

The famous writer gets in his usual humorous touch by observing that nowadays at a number of tracks close finishes are judged by an electric eye which takes a photograph of the contending horses as they cross the line. He is not sure he is for that, as it's tough enough to guess how your horse is going to run without also being obliged to figure out just how he's going to screen.

The people want racing in California, as was amply demonstrated by the recent spring sessions at my Tanforan course and at Bay Meadows; there were fifty days of the sport in all, beginning early in March and winding up last Saturday. I must say, too, the game was going strong right up to the get-away. With good class among the horses and skillful drawing up of the conditions of races it appears to be conclusively proved the people will attend for five days of the week at any period of the year.

I pioneered for the five day a week idea and am tracks and perhaps eventually throughout the country. heartily glad it is to become "the thing" at all California

Contemplated shortening of the period of racing at Santa Anita will bring the horses up this way at about the same time in the spring, even with that course only having five days a week. The popularity of the sport hereabouts as late as May, however, shows the spring season might reasonably end toward the end of this month. So, it seems of little importance whether or not Santa Anita runs somewhat later than the end of February, as was the case this year.

PIONEER WOMAN PASSES TO BEYOND

Mrs. Linda Boni, a pioneer resident of Daly City, passed away, last Saturday, after a long illness at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Rena Beecher of Mission street.

Beside her daughter, Mrs. Boni is survived by two sons—Remo and Ernest, three sisters—Mrs. Zaira Selmi, Mrs. Frank Davis and Mrs. Mario Salvarezza, and a brother, Joseph Spadoni.

Funeral services were held Tuesday morning of this week.

LAYMAN TO PREACH TO PRESBYTERIANS

David Neilands, a Presbyterian layman from Oakland, will be the speaker in the Grace Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning, at 11 o'clock. His subject will be, "The Pew Talks To The Purpit." Under the direction of Miss Mildred Swan the choir will provide special music. In the evening at 7:45, Rev. John R. Stevenson will speak on, "Rachael and Leah, the True and the False Bride."

COUNTY SUPERVISORS MEET IN ANNUAL SESSION AT EUREKA

Wednesday of this week saw the opening of the annual convention at Eureka of the County Supervisors Association of the state. The meeting will continue for several days.

Chairman Manuel Francis, Albert J. Witt of Daly City and other members of the San Mateo County Board are in attendance.

Before leaving to attend the session Supervisor Witt stated he would urge the association to back the plan, originated here, for state and federal aid in the acquisition of coast beaches for development as public playgrounds. This fight will be carried before the Legislature next January. Endorsement will be asked of the coast erosion control program mapped by the California Beaches association, which is seeking a congressional appropriation of $100,000 for an army survey of the California coastline.

Return of control over their local highway patrols to the individual counties will also be advocated by Supervisor Witt at the confab, he said. The fight started when motor vehicle department officials announced recently that appointments to county patrols will be made solely by the state personnel board from eligible lists through the state at large, and that boards of supervisors no longer have anything to say about new additions. Charges have been made that the San Mateo County list of eligibles contains names of San Francisco residents through political pressure. This county is seeking an increase of five men to its patrol.

The supervisors' body will be asked to take a stand on the proposal to return control and regulation of billboards to the counties to conform with local zoning legislation. San Mateo County has charged that the state is permitting open violations of its own billboard law, which violations conflict with local zoning ordinances prohibiting outdoor signs in residential and certain scenic areas.

SPANISH DANCER TO BE FEATURED AT EXPOSITION

Wild West Show And Other Special Numbers Also To Be Presented

A gay fiesta will commemorate the first anniversary week of the California Pacific International Exposition, beginning May 29.

The exposition's first season opened on May 29, last year.

One of the greatest arrays of talent, spectacle and entertainment ever gathered has been recruited for this celebration, which will last for one entire week.

Marissa Flores, beautiful Spanish dancer, has been named queen of the fiesta, and a score or more of outstanding entertainers will come to the exposition as a supporting cast for Miss Flores.

One of the spectacular features will be Olesen and Johnson, kings of comedy, in their elaborate musical revue, "Anything Goes," with thirty-five of the most beautiful girls in the West, a grand variety of specialty acts, gags, laughs, chatter and other mirth provoking entertainment which will also present fifty supreme comic stars in the royal court of hilarity and song.

The great Ken Maynard Diamond K Ranch Wild West Circus and Indian Congress will be brought to the San Diego fair on June 5, 6 and 7, for a world premiere on the exposition grounds.

BOY SCOUTS WILL VIE FOR HONORS IN COMPETITION

Patrols Will Contest At Third Annual Camporee At Pine Lake Park

Nearly a hundred patrols of Boy Scout campers from troops of San Francisco will participate in the third annual Camporee, to be held Saturday and Sunday, May 23 and 24, at Pine Lake Park. The camporee committee, headed by Dan Bosschart, finally selected Pine Lake Park at Twenty-sixth avenue and Sloat boulevard after a careful study of all available sites.

The committee which guides the destiny of the Camporee is, as usual, composed of Scoutmasters and commissioners.

The following are some of the games and contests to be conducted at the camporee: Tent pitching, signaling, fire by friction, tent peg driving, first aid, fuzz stick whittling, life line throwing, lariat throwing, skin the Scout, centipede race, Elisa crossing the ice and others.

Competition at the camporee is against a high standard. It is not a case of each patrol being against each other patrol. Resourcefulness and initiative in pitching patrol camps, using camp fuel, constructing camp conveniences such as ice boxes, tables, etc., at the Camporee, together with cleanliness and general camping and Scouting proficiency go to determine the score of the respective patrols. All patrols receiving a class "A" rating will be eligible to compete in the Regional Camporee to be held next fall at Sacramento.

AUXILIARY DOES THINGS IN BIG WAY IN MONTH

Poppy Day Should Be Well Supported Friday And Saturday

Another Poppy Time has arrived. Another day in which we as citizens have the opportunity to help those men who sacrificed their health and happiness that we may enjoy the benefits of Democracy. Thousands of men today are living in hospitals, broken in health, but without any income whatever except the annual job of making Poppies for the American Legion Auxiliary. It is a privilege to help these men make a living. Let each of us do our small part today and tomorrow, Friday and Saturday, and wear an American Legion Veteran Made Paper Poppy!

Daly City Unit No. 410 again has the opportunity of praising our Junior Girls. At the first Annual Field Meet of Sunset Post No. 400, American Legion, the girls went out and put on their exhibition drill and brought home a silver cup. The girls have drilled hard and we are proud of their work. Comrade Ed Trier is the happiest and proudest man in Daly City. His efforts have won their award. Come and see them drill on Memorial Day.

The Junior Girls are giving a Spaghetti Feed on Saturday evening, June 6, for their uniform fund.

Eight members of the Unit attended the luncheon in Alameda, last Saturday, honoring our National President, Mrs. Ada Mucklestone. Her message, given to over three hundred delegates of the Bay Area, was most inspiring. She also spoke over the radio on Sunday morning.

On Wednesday evening a large delegation of members went to the War Memorial and witnessed the initiation and installation of the Southern Pacific Unit No. 412.

DALY CITY ROD AND GUN CLUB

(By "Bill" Grantham)

Our regular monthly meeting was held Friday, May 15, with a large attendance. Of course the Crab Chaaping Party was no inducement. No, not much.

Plans were made and discussed for the two day fishing trip on June 6 and 7, to Napa River. Members phone Doc Kost for reservations. Also for the second annual picnic at Martin's Beach, July 18 and 19. Same setup as last year. Free "Fish Bake" and coffee. Loads and loads of prizes for the numerous events. Those intending to spend both days, make cabin reservations through Ed Moore or Mr. Watts at Martin's Beach. This annual outing will, if anything, be bigger and better than the last, if possible.

Gene Sullivan of the Chronicle sent the boys a mess of corncob pipes and Heine's tobacco for the meeting. And was the hall fogged? Pretty good tobacco, says I.

The writer tried to hook salmon by trolling around Pedro Point last Sunday. Although salmon were seen breaking water, none were caught. Won't be long until they'll be hittin' down there. Boats can be had at Shelter Cove. Phone reservations. Tracy, Antioch, Paradise Cove and Belvedere Point look like the best bets for the week end. Montezuma Slough came to life the past week end. Sardines were used, as also at China Camp and the Air Base. Well, that's all for this week. Don't bring that sardine smell home. So long, good luck; be seeing you.

Predicts One of Nine Persons Will Be Injured During 1936

Every ninth person will meet with an accident of some sort this year if past statistics can be relied upon, L. D. Cavanaugh, executive vice president of the Federal Life Insurance Co., of Chicago, asserted recently in a statement issued in connection with Accident and Health week.

"The number who will probably meet with accidents," Cavanaugh continued, "is five times as great as are expected to die from natural causes. More than 8,250,000 persons were injured and more than 100,000 killed by accidents in the United States last year, according to statistics compiled by the National Safety council. The toll taken by sickness is even greater. While an average of 17 persons is injured in accidents every minute of the night and day, 51 are disabled each minute by sickness."

CUTTING DOWN DEBT COSTS WISE COURSE

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work

Reducing the wages of money so that they can be paid by the wages of men is a good idea and one that is being worked out by both the people of this country and by our cousins in the country to the north, Canada. That statement will have to be modified a bit, as the Dominion government itself is not in the van in the reduction of interest rates. The lead in the necessary action is being taken by separate provinces.

Premier Aberhart of Alberta recently said:

"Canada and all her provinces are heading for a crisis where it will mean either retracing or repudiation, unless they stop trying to borrow themselves out of debt. Interest rates must come down on a par with the wages of services and the price of goods."

Great Britain set the example in scaling down debt costs, but Canada as a whole has not followed. When the Aberhart government set out to adjust costs to fit revenue, it reduced everywhere possible in services, but still the outgo was $2,000,000 a year more than the revenue. The change was then made to refund the debts to a lower interest rate. Aberhart defines action he is taking as technical, but not actual default. In technical default you pay what you can; in the Alberta case the interest, but not maturing interest. In actual default you pay nothing.

The ceremony last Sunday accompanying the dispatching of the 'Green Diamond" of the Illinois Central from Chicago to St. Louis was made notable by the part the federal government took in the financing of the railroad company in making the fast train possible. Chairman Jesse Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation emphasized that immense amounts are loaned by the government with the object of helping labor. Without funds from Washington the railroad companies of the country would have gone into stagnation and unemployment would have been extremely high.

New York City is to have a world's exposition in 1939, just as San Francisco is to have one the same year. As with the railroads, the men in the movement are not averse to getting money from the government. On the finance committee, too, are the names of bankers, public utilities executives and officials of insurance companies, long known as bitter critics of the administration. It is planned to get at least $10,000,000 from Uncle Sam.

* * *

The latest analysis of the prospects of the rival parties in the national election indicates the President farther out in front than ever before. For awhile there was some fear the Rooseveltian popularity was ebbing a bit. Lately, however, the signs are all the other way. Some writers sum up the situation by saying the Democratic strength comes mainly from the continuing improvement of business conditions, the lack of a strong candidate in the opposition ranks, the absence of any constructive force in those ranks and the President's own popularity.

It is pointed out by experts that the maneuvers of the national committee of the opposition party are, if anything, stupider than had been expected. Often severely critical of the Roosevelt administration, the nation recently said:

"At every turn the Republican National Committee and the Liberty League have concentrated the attention of the country upon their own reactionary character and have thrown the waverers into the Roosevelt camp. Mr. Roosevelt's victory will, therefore, be the country's answer to Republican stupidity. It will also be the country's answer to a program for running a vast industrial system like the American on the basis of a laissez faire policy relieved only by subsidies to Big Ownership."

LARGE TRUCKING FIRM BUYS MORE FORD V EIGHTS

Overland Freight Transfer Company Augments Its Already Large Fleet

A number of years ago, Russ Haskins, now a salesman for a San Francisco Ford Agency, played football, Rugby style, for Major Charles L. Tilden's team of amateurs. The "Barbarians," as they were called, made short work of the independent Rugby teams in the neighborhood of the bay region, and even managed to administer a sound thrashing to the Olympic Club.

That was one of Major Tilden's most earnest desires—to knock over the Olympic Club—and when this was accomplished Russ Haskins, who played wing for the Barbarians, was a firm and lasting friend of Major Tilden.

So it came about that when the major, who is president of the Overland Freight Transfer Company of San Francisco, needed a few new additions to his large fleet of trucks, one of his first thoughts was for Russ Haskins and his Ford V-8's. After all, Russ had helped him beat the Olympic Club.

The deal was not long in the air, for Major Tilden not only liked Russ, but he liked the Ford V-8's. From Russ Haskins he purchased six 1936 Ford V-8's, one and one half tons, with 157 inch wheelbase. Supplementing his previous fleet of 39 Fords, the six new trucks bring the total to 45 Fords in service at the present time for the Overland Freight Transfer Company. One of the largest drayage firms in the west, the Overland Freight now has approximately fifty per cent Fords in the pick-up and delivery service. There are models from 1929 to 1936 in action, ranging from passenger coupes to the heaviest trucks.

Major Tilden has been president of the Overland Freight for 53 long years. Both he and his company went through the "good old days before the fire;" he has well-nigh grown up with San Francisco. He can recall the fire—very vividly, and he can remember when the drayage for the Overland Freight Transfer was handled with a "hoss and wagon."

His was the first drayage firm to use a motor truck. In truth, the motor truck had not yet been built when the Major first converted an old Locomobile passenger car into a truck, or at least into something that served as a truck. This was at the turn of the century.

At the present time, Major Tilden has more than 100 units in service for the Overland Freight. Both the Major and the freight drivers declare that the performance of the Ford V-8's has been excellent, and that their ability to carry heavy loads has been of extreme value to the Overland Freight Transfer Company.

YOUNG STAR IS CAST IN NEW AND RIOTOUS COMEDY

Gladys George Makes Good In A Big Way In Prize Play

One of the all important events of the theatrical season in San Francisco is the engagement at the Geary Theater of the new, young, gay and glamorous star, Gladys George, in the Pemberton prize play, "Personal Appearance," the extravagantly funny American comedy by Lawrence Riley, directed by Antoinette Perry, and with the same identical supporting company that played 504 performances in New York and 106 performances in Chicago. The engagement, which opens at the Geary Theater Monday night, May 25, is limited and the performances of this play in California are important, as they will be the final American performances of the play prior to London.

The play has to do with a cinema queen who is making a tour of personal appearances and who finds herself, through no fault of her own, an overnight visitor in a tourist home in rural Pennsylvania. It is there that her adventure becomes, all at once, comic, wicked and amorous. And all this glorious fun is played at a fast and furious pace, at almost a breakneck speed and with a regimentation of laughs that tumble over one another in comic confusion.

In addition to Gladys George, the cast includes Philip Ober as Bud, the country Adonis who is so truly chaste; Charles D. Brown, as the movie star's personal manager, who is sorely beset by the eccentricities of his star; Merna Pace as the lovely country girl, whom Bud actually loves; Eula Guy as the ninety year old Aunt Kate, who has young ideas and a sharp tongue; Florence Robinson as the stage struck girl from next door; Minna Phillips as the bucolic society leader; Don Shelton, John Robb, Dorrit Kelton, and the others who have continually appeared in this Pemberton prize play since that sensational premiere night in the autumn of 1934 in New York City. On that night a new star was created and a new and listing comedy success appeared on the theatrical horizon. Inasmuch as the play begins with the star's personal appearance on the stage of the Grand Opera House at Scranton, Pennsylvania, and that this has much to do with the story of the play, it is urged that you be in your seats by 8:35 of an evening or 2:35 on the Wednesday and Saturday matinees.

The Golden Text will be: "Dearly beloved, I beseech you as strangers and pilgrims, abstain from fleshly lusts, which war against the soul" (I Peter 2: 11). Bible selections will include the following passage from Isaiah 45: 5, 10-12, 13: "I am the Lord, and there is none else, there is no God beside me: I girded thee, though thou hast not known me: . . . Woe unto him that saith unto his father, What begettest thou? or to the woman, What hast thou brought fourth? Thus saith the Lord, the Holy One of Israel and his Maker, Ask me of things to come concerning my sons, and concerning the work of my hands command ye me. I have made the earth, and created man upon it: . . . I have raised him up in righteousness, and I will direct all his ways: . . ."

TANFOS LOSE IN EXTRA INNINGS

Jinx Pursues Daly City Nine In Close Contest With San Mateo

After providing fans with one of the best played games to be witnessed in the State League this season, and holding a slim one run lead for eight innings, the Daly City Tanforans could not cope with the jinx which has hounded them for weeks and lost out to the San Mateo Blues, 2 to 1, in the tenth inning, Sunday at San Mateo.

The Tanforans outhit the Blues, 9 to 7, but were unable to score more than one run.

TOUGH ON BILL

It was a heart-breaking contest for big Bill Sturtevant, Daly moundsman, to lose, for he held the San Matean sluggers hitless for the first five innings. Sturtevant has the hardest assignment in the State League, for he is never able to let up in his deliveries—he has to bear down on every pitch because his teammates never give him any kind of a lead on which to fall back.

The Tanfos played without the services of burly "Tex" Petrocchi in right field. Petrocchi was kept in the dugout as a relief pitcher in the absence of Jack Gertsenberg, who withdrew from the Tanforan Club to hurl in the Peninsula League. However, Manager Ray Volkman signed up Lorry Goldstein for right field and the new player looked good, making a nice throw to cut off a runner at the plate and getting a single for himself.

THREE FOR PALMINI

Lou Palmini, who garnered three hits for four tries Sunday, scored for the locals in the second inning when he was safe on a single, went to second on a sacrifice and scored on a sharp hit by Mickey Hannan.

San Mateo evened the count in the eighth on two hits, a walk and an error. The Blues loaded the bases, but some real "hole" pitching by Sturtevant and two perfect throws to the plate by Shortstop Johnny Vasquez prevented further damage. The run was unearned.

In the tenth, Walt Lister, who relieved Pudgy Gould on the mound, hit a double to right, went to third on an infield out and scored on a long fly to the outfield, ending the game and relegating the Tanfos to fifth place in the standings, just above the lowly Crinda Reds, who have yet to win a game.

ONE SUIT EMPTY

Mickey Hannan, back in form after a spine injury, stopped everything that came his way at second base and came up with a couple of sparkling plays to make the infield look good while Paul Kellman in left field came through with two sound base hits.

At present the Tanfos have only eleven men on the squad, Killilea, utility infielder, keeping Petrocchi company on the side lines on Sunday. Outfielder De Fillipo was released from the club leaving one more empty suit for Volkman to fill.

The loss puts the Daly City nine definitely out of the running for honors in the first half of the league battle and their only hope is that they shake off their jinx in the second half to gain the right to compete in the championship play-off at the conclusion of the season.

LENDING OF CAR LIABILITY TOLD

Consent Of Owner For Others To Drive Auto May Be Implied

Many persons are unaware that when they lend a car to a friend or relative there is a liability which attaches to the lender of the car in the event the borrower should become involved in an accident resulting in damage claims. Two recent court decisions clearly bring out this liability. In case of Philips vs. Cuccio the District Court of Appeals said:

"The mother's ownership of the automobile raised the presumption that the son drove her automobile with her consent and for her purposes, and the court could, even in the face of contradictory testimony, if it doubted the credibility thereof, base its findings upon presumption alone."

In that case there was no testimony that the mother actually gave her son permission to drive her car, but the law reads that anyone driving with express or implied consent makes the owner responsible with the driver for damages. Although there was no direct consent in this case, the court presumed the mother, through her acts, had given implied consent and was equally responsible with the son for the damages resulting from his negligence.

The owner of a car is also liable if the person to whom he lends the car entrusts it to still another person to drive. The Appellate Court in the case of Sutton vs. Tange held:

"A statute providing that the owner of an automobile shall not be liable for injury occasioned by its negligent operation, unless it was being driven by his express or implied consent or knowledge and his driving consented to by the owner. If the owner chooses to entrust his car to another person, he invests such person, so long as he uses the car, with the same authority which the owner has in regard to management of the car. That authority includes the right to select the operator."

LOW MILEAGE

Dragging brakes, excessive choking, valve tappets set too close, or late spark, are some of the causes of low gasoline mileage.

Other causes are allowing the motor to idle for long periods or racing the motor while standing still.

REAP HOOKS TO COMBINES

Educator Visualizes Science And Technical Progress Of Last Few Years

Dr. H. M. Tory, a Canadaian pioneer in education and science, visualized to a Vancouver audience the other day the technical progress of the last few years.

As a boy the good Doctor cut his father's crops down at Guysborough, Nova Scotia, with a reap hook. In size and shape and use, there was little change in the sickle used by the Doctor from the stone reap hook of 10,000 years ago.

In the short span of the Doctor's life he has seen the scythe, the cradle, the reaper, the mower, the reaper and binder, and now the "combine" which, in a one-man operation, cuts, threshes and sacks a field of grain, and with one man replaces one hundred harvesters.

Turning from the mechanical to the scientific side of grain production, the Doctor told how when he took charge of Canada's Research Bureau some 12 years ago, one chemist was working "part time" on wheat rust. This grain disease, it is estimated, has in 30 short years, cost Canada over 600 million dollars.

To experiment and now provide farmers with rustless seed wheat may have cost Canada about $500,000. It was worth it. Rust is being beaten.

These two illustrations show what the engineer and chemist can do to increase the production and decrease the cost of wheat and soil crops.

But Canadians should remember that biology and machinery recognize no flag.

Improvements in grain growing and harvesting which Canadians have made in Dr. Tory's life of 60 years are available and used by Russia, Argentine, Australia.

What should concern Canadians is not what has been done to improve grain growing, but what will be done in the future.

Russia has working on her farms and with headquarters at the Institute of Botany in Leningrad, 1000 scientists. What they do, bacteriologically and technically, affects grain prices in Russia; and Russian grain prices affect Canadian grain prices and production.

The 1935 grain crop of Russia shows colossal gains over the crop of 1933; and several times the crop of 1914.

Tomorrow, with her own wants satisfied, the competition of Russia may be different.

But Canada with her vast fields and numerous scientists need fear no one.

The thought to learn from Dr. Tory and the thought which The Vancouver Sun endeavors to broadcast to its readers and to Canadians at large, is that the change from reap hooks to combines has created an era of plentitude.

Bacteriologically the chemist is changing the world; technologically the engineer is doing the same. There can, in this huge Dominion, be a superabundance of food and clothing and shelter for each of our 10 million Canadians.

On a bookkeeping basis some people might think this generation bankrupt. Some political and financial leaders still believe they can get us out of bookkeeping bankruptcy with more bookkeeping.

As much sense to try, and feed this generation on a reap hook harvesting.

For those 99 displaced harvesters to eat and enjoy the new living standards requires that people learn what chemistry and machinery have done to create a plentitude; and requires an equal plentitude and cheapness of money and credit to distribute wheat and foods and goods.

Money in an era of plenty is no longer a property or fixity; it is only a function with a value that must decrease as goods increase.

There is no excuses today for living in poverty and fear. Canadians can overlook the odd man that howls to high heaven at mention of adjusting debt claims and social structures.

His little wounds seem trivial when compared to the reap hook drudgery that has been released by combines.

These should be great days. Combines are cause for rejoicing. They foreshadow progress such as was never before known by man in any land.—Vancouver Sun.

IT'S A WEAK DEFENSE

It is by no means a legal defense that you were driving within the speed imit at the time of an accident.

The law requires, entirely apart from specified speed limits, that cars shall be kept under such control that they can be handled with safety under all conditions—including conditions which might dictate driving at a speed of only five miles per hour.

OIL AFFECTS PLUGS

A poor grade of lubricating oil or worn piston rings which permit the oil to pass too freely into the cylinder head often cause spark plugs to misfire.

The plugs become fouled by excessive carbon deposits, or soot is deposited on the porcelain insulation, causing a short circuit.

SYNOPSIS

The Duke, Barry Gilbert, likable youth of twenty-three, jobless and broke, enters an unoccupied summer home in Southampton, seeking shelter from a storm. He makes himself at home. Dozing at the fireplace, he is startled by the arrival of a butler, Willetts; and a chauffeur, Evans. He learns that the son of the owner of the house, Jack Ridder, whom the servants had never seen, is expected. He decides to bluff it out. His supposed parents have left for Germany. Next morning he is given a letter for his "mother." He opens it and finds a message from the real Jack, saying he could not come, and returning a hundred-dollar bill. The boy's father had pensioned him into obscurity. Barry pockets the money, intending to return it later. He orders Evans to take him to Montauk, intending to disappear there. On the way he meets Judge Hambidge and his daughter, Patricia. Believing he is Jack Ridder, she invites him to dinner the following Thursday. Barry returns to Southampton, deciding to stay a bit longer. Mr. Ridder, Sr., through his newspaper, the Globe, accuses Judge Hambidge of taking orders from Tammany Hall in a condemnation proceeding. Barry meets Peter Winslow, prominent attorney. Winslow tells Barry that Judge Hambidge had seen an accident in which a woman was killed by a taxicab. At home Barry finds the wife of the real Jack Ridder awaiting him. Her husband is in jail in New York, charged with the murder of Mike Kelly, Tammany boss. The girl, Peggy, tells Barry how she had met Jack in Florida and married him, as Jay Rogers. Jack lost his job, and they went to New York, where she got work at the Cocoanut Bar. There she was accused of trying to pick the pocket of Mike Kelly, and was arrested. Her husband went to Kelly's to induce him to drop the charge. Later Kelly was found dead, his skull crushed by a decanter. Barry suggests he can help as Jack Ridder, and Mrs. Rogers agrees. Judge Hambidge delivers a decision in the condemnation suit in which Kelly had been interested. Barry cables Mrs. Ridder for $2,000. Winslow takes Rogers' case. Barry gets a job on the Globe under his true name. The editor, Ernie Harwood, assigns him to cover the Kelly murder.

He had turned into a cheap restaurant, near The Globe, where the slim young man had promised to meet him. Lunching, he mapped out his immediate future. Work-days, Barry Gilbert would live in the little rooms he'd taken Saturday. Week-ends, of course, he'd have to spend at Southampton, as John Clarke Ridder, Jr. That was essential to his contact with Bad Nauheim. And to another, even more essential contact. He was to dine at the Hambidges again next Friday, he recalled—with the lady from Boston to whom Pat must have written flattering things about him. A grand girl, Pat, and suddenly, as we have seen, not altogether unattainable. "If I make good," Barry thought, "I can tell her the truth about myself, and ask her to marry me. Why not? All this John Clarke Ridder, Jr., business'll just seem funny then."

The slim young man arrived in due time, and duly presented his charge at the homicide bureau. First, there was Tim Laugherty, as Irish as Barry, and with almost as ready a grin. They took to each other immediately. "Barry Gilbert," Tim repeated. "Well, the name's all right, anyway."

Tim regarded the Kelly murder as a closed case. So did MacDevitt, and everyone else Barry met at headquarters. "The Rogers kid done it, that's sure," Tim declared. "This Filipino says he didn't let nobody else in that night."

"Maybe somebody else let himself in."

Tim smiled scornfully.

"How?" There was a new lock on that door. Show him the keys, Mac." Mac obliged.

"Here you are," he said. "It was chained to Kelly's pants button."

"Show him the decanter. Maybe he can get something out of that."

"Why not?" Mac laughed. "There's about half a pint in it."

It was a gruesome exhibit—that bottle which had killed a man. Real cut glass, and nearly a quarter full of reddish liquor. "Wonder why that didn't spill out," Barry ventured.

"Maybe the cork stopped it," Tim replied.

"They didn't find any finger prints?"

"No. The guy must have worn gloves."

"Listen," Barry ventured again. "Why weren't the Filipino's finger prints on the bottle—if he served it?"

"Guess he wore gloves, too. My butler always does!"

"Well, if he wore 'em—"

"I get you," Tim interrupted. "If the guy that done this wore gloves, and the Filipino wore gloves, why then maybe the Filipino's the guy that done this."

"Exactly."

"Say, you got a bean on you," the detective conceded, almost admiringly. "Of course, I still think we got the right party, but he's a cagey guy, that Oriental, and he didn't say nothing about gloves to me. Why don't we go over and see if he wears 'em?"

He didn't.

At least, not when he opened the front door.

"Say, Charlie," Tim began; "let us in. We want to ask you sumpin'. Do you wear gloves when you're serving stuff?"

"Sometimes."

"Did you wear 'em that night?"

"Maybe. I don't remember."

He was a thin, sallow youth, with the usual glossy black hair brushed back from his forehead. Nothing remarkable about him—not even his shiftiness. The three men stood in the broad hall of the Kelly house, and Charlie repeated the tale of admitting Rogers, and hearing a quarrel, and returning to his room until the visitor left.

"You were in your room when the row started, then?" Barry asked.

"Yes, sir."

"And you could hear the voices pretty plainly?"

"Yes, sir."

"You came upstairs, and then went back to your room, and stayed there until just as Rogers was leaving?"

"Yes, sir."

"Kelly must have been dead then, if Rogers killed him?"

"Yes, sir."

"But you didn't hear the sound of a blow in your room, nor the thud of a body falling?"

No answer.

"If you could hear voices downstairs, don't you think you'd've heard that, if it had happened?"

The Filipino looked down from one inquisitor to the other.

"Maybe I didn't stay in my room," he said at last, very slowly. "I don't remember."

Tim was about to press the point when there was the rasp of a latchkey being thrust into the lock of the front door.

Then the knob turned, and Mrs. Kelly entered.

She stopped short at sight of the intruders.

The door remained opened.

"Well, Mr. Laugherty!" she exclaimed. "So you've come back

It Was a Gruesome Exhibit—That Bottle Which Had Killed a Man.

again? With a friend, too! Why don't you step in the parlor?"

Tim thanked her, and presented Barry.

"Glad to meet you," Mrs. Kelly declared. "Run along, you" — to the Filipino. "Come on in, boys!"

"You're forgetting your key," Barry said.

He took it out of the lock.

"It's a brand new key, isn't it?" he asked, casually.

"Sure," Mrs. Kelly answered. "It's a new lock. Mike had it put on only a few days ago."

"How many keys were there?"

"Two. That one, and Mike's."

Barry was scribbling on the back of an envelope.

Mrs. Kelly was a large woman, in her fifties. Her hair was dyed red—a brilliant, aggressive red unknown to Nature. But she was affable, and extremely good-humored. Evidently, not grieving herself to death about Mike.

"Just dropped around to see Charlie," Tim said. "Anything you want to know, Mr. Gilbert?"

"Just one thing. Where were you the night of the murder?"

Mrs. Kelly laughed.

"You don't read the papers much, do you?"

"Why?"

"Because all about that was in The Herald Tribune the morning after the body was found."

"All about what?"

"All about my being up in Harlem at a dance."

"And what time did you get home?"

"Around daylight."

"Did you let yourself in?"

"Sure."

"And you didn't wonder where Mike was?"

"I thought he was asleep. We didn't room together. The lights was all out."

"No light in the front room?"

"No."

"Sure?"

"Dead sure. Anything else?"

"No, thanks. I didn't mean to keep you so long. But one thing led to another."

"That's all right," Mrs. Kelly assured him. "I got nothing to hide. Drop around any time you feel like it."

"No holes in that alibi," Tim said, as they reached the sidewalk. "Straight shooter, she is. Ran a saloon when Mike married her. You certainly got wound up. What was all that about the latch key?"

"Bright and shiny, wasn't it?"

"Brand new. She told you that. So did I, when we were looking at Kelly's key-wallet."

"Yes," Barry admitted. "But there wasn't any new key in that wallet."

Tim Laugherty stopped short in Fifth avenue.

"You're right," he said.

"I've got the number," Barry went on, producing his envelope. "A 66152. Write that down. A plain, round head. Two of 'em. Where's the other? It never was in that wallet, because every hook's filled."

"Maybe he carried it loose in his pocket."

"Wherever he carried the key, where is it?"

"I don't know," Tim answered. "It wasn't on the body—that's sure."

By now, it was time for his dinner appointment with Peggy.

Still in high spirits, he walked around to her boarding house. Barry remembered Southampton with shame when he saw the Ridders' two shabby rooms. The boy lay in one of them; a bright youngster, five years old. "The doctor doesn't seem to know what the matter is," Peggy declared.

"I know," Barry said. "I'd be sick in this dump. Why don't you bring him out to the country?"

Peggy shook her head.

"I want to be near Jack," she repeated.

"Winslow says he's likely to be free in a week."

Dining comfortably in a nearby cafe, he told her everything that had happened since their parting; all the astonishing events of that day. And, with the recital, Peggy's spirits rose, too. When Barry mentioned his new job, she actually laughed.

"That's funny," she said. "You're doing what the old man's real son wouldn't do."

"I've two reasons," Barry explained. "In the first place it puts me in a splendid position to help Jack. In the second—well, the fact is that I'm nuts about a girl, and I want to make good on her account."

"What's her name?"

"Patricia Hambidge. She lives at Southampton, and she and her father both knew the Ridders. They think I'm young Ridder, of course."

The next morning, Barry dropped in again on Pete Winslow. The lawyer had talked with Peggy's husband, and was persuaded of his innocence. They've got a prima facie case, though," he admitted. "The grand jury'll indict the boy, I'm afraid. We'll get him tried as quickly as possible, and there isn't the slightest chance of his conviction."

Peter leaned forward, his fingers intertwined between his knees.

"That was a shrewd question you asked that Filipino. Only I wish you'd asked it of me. He's prepared now. Never mind. When it comes to cross-examination—"

He rose, with the joy of battle in his eyes.

"But be careful about tipping our hand," he said. "Bring in Mrs. Rogers. I'd like to check up on her statement."

"Tomorrow?"

"Make it next week."

"He's a great lawyer," Ernie Harwood said, when Barry repeated as much of this conversation as it seemed wise to repeat. "And a wizard at cross-examination. I've seen him discredit one witness after another with mere monosyllables. Tell Winslow I may have a tip for him some day. It's nothing now. Just a phone call. But, if I ever find who it was—"

Barry devoted that evening to drafting a letter for the real Jack Ridder to copy and send to his mother. Something told him that whatever the boy wrote himself would be cold and resentful. That would make the old lady unhappy, and Barry didn't want her to be.

"I've got a job on father's paper," he wrote, with genuine pride. I've respected father's wish as to using his name — except at Southampton, of course. They had to know there. At The Globe, I'm on my own, and getting ahead. I'll be a credit to you yet, darling."

From that, he went into some detail as to his interest in the friend "locked up for murder he didn't commit," and the need of funds for his defense. Even to Jack Ridder, it was obvious that the letter had to be sent, so sent it was—in Jack Ridder's hand-writing—from the railway station post box at Southampton the following Friday. Barry arrived on an early afternoon train.

He had wired Evans to meet him, and found Willetts waiting in the front hall. There was no doubt now that the butler suspected something, and Barry, sure of what he suspected, faced him with a broad grin. "What's the matter with you, Willetts?"

"Matter, sir?"

"You've been acting queer ever since the night Mrs. Rogers spent here. I don't know what you heard that night?"

"Do you mean eavesdropping, sir?"

There was a pained surprise in the man's voice.

"Not me, sir. I've got my position to remember. I've been a butler with some of the best families."

"All right," Barry soothed him. "You think I'm back at the kind of behavior that alienated me from my father. Well, I'm not. That 'glittery lady' is the wife of a man I met in Florida. . . ."

And, for the third time that week, Barry related his story.

"She's a brave little kid," he concluded, "and she's in trouble up to her neck. I'm going to stand by her. I've got a job on my father's newspaper—under an assumed name, because I want to win out on my own. I've cabled my mother for money, and everything I can get goes to that lady until her husband can win on his own. I'm going to be in town most of the time now, working my head off."

LAST CHANCE TO SAVE $12.50 ON AN AUTOMATIC Gas WATER HEATER

No Home Improvement COSTS SO LITTLE AND GIVES so much

HERE is an offer that is too good to pass up. Think of it—$12.50 for your old water back, non-automatic or combination water heater when you buy your new Automatic gas water heater.

But you will have to hurry. This liberal trade-in offer expires on May 28.

Nothing you can buy brings a home so much comfort and convenience as the quick on-tap service of hot water an Automatic so dependably and economically provides. No more waiting for water to heat. No more "tank-patting." No more heating too much water and letting it get cold again. That always means wasted fuel.

Come in before this offer expires and trade in your old water heater on a new Automatic. You can use the revised F. H. A. terms of Nothing Down and as little as three dollars a month. Don't delay. This exceptionally liberal trade-in on a new Automatic selling for fifty dollars or more will be in effect only a few more days.
